DEFINITIONS

The following are the basic definitions of Storage, Demurrage and Detention charges applicable to import and export shipments.

Storage (Import): A charge for the use of container storage space within a port terminal, container yard or warehouse. The charge applies from the moment the container is discharged from the vessel until it leaves the terminal.

Storage (Export): A charge applied from the moment a full container is delivered to the terminal until the container is loaded onto the vessel.

Demurrage (Import): Begins when the container is discharged from the vessel and ends when the container is collected by the carrier, customer or haulier. Demurrage is charged for each day the container remains at the port.

Demurrage (Export): A charge for the use of equipment within the port terminal. In export shipments, demurrage begins when the container is delivered to the terminal and ends when it is loaded onto the vessel.

Detention (Import): A charge related to exceeding the allowed period for using a container outside the port. In import shipments, detention begins when the full container is collected from the port and ends when the empty container is returned.

Detention (Export): Applies from the moment an empty container is collected from the depot or port terminal until the full container is returned.

Reefer Monitoring

Reefer monitoring includes power supply, temperature control and monitoring services provided for refrigerated containers during their stay at the terminal.

LCL Storage

For Less than Container Load (LCL) shipments, storage charges are calculated based on cargo volume (CBM) and the number of storage days at the terminal or warehouse after the expiration of the applicable free time.

Important Information: All charges presented in this document are subject to applicable free time, carrier terms and conditions, terminal regulations and local port regulations.
